

The Carmel Pine Cone

Editor's Column

The city council and the planning commission have spent many weary hours the last two weeks discussing how to prevent further encroachment of non-residence uses in the residential area. They seem to have arrived at the conclusion that the solution lies in rewriting the zoning ordinances and changing the procedure for handling use permit applications.

The existing laws and procedures are adequate. None of the encroachments would have occurred in the residence area had the present planning commission and those of the past discovered the simple formula for making zoning ordinances work. And until they do make this discovery, no revision of ordinances or changes of procedure will be effective.

The formula?

When individuals or groups come before the planning commission to ask for a special permit to introduce into the residence area a non-residence use, the planning commission will pluck up its courage and pucker up its lips and say . . .

No.

The power of denial lies with the planning commission. The failure to preserve the residence area is not a failure of law or procedure. It is a failure of courage on the part of the people who have been chosen to protect the community.

The following item appeared on the agenda of the school board meeting Wednesday night.

A Panhellenic organization has been formed for Monterey County. Mrs. Tweedt, principal of Ashton School in Salinas, has been elected chairman of the organization. All high schools in this area are being asked to submit the names of graduating senior girls each year to this organization, along with pertinent information on the students' scholarship ability, father's occupation, and personality and character ratings. This information is to be kept on file in the Panhellenic office and issued to the sororities requesting information on specific students who are prospective "rushees".

The school board approved the co-operation of Carmel High School in this project with the limitation that the students' permission be obtained before the information is submitted, and that a group conference of all senior girls be scheduled yearly to discuss sororities.

Thus the school board has given tacit approval and has undertaken to render active assistance to a system that should have no place in our public school organization. Whatever the intention of the sororities, their effect is to create—and intensify where it already exists—class consciousness, racial and religious discrimination. It is a problem that directly concerns the universities and colleges, and we are not asking the board to enter into a crusade against sororities, but we do feel that the board should refrain from strengthening the movement by facilitating the

The gentleman in the linoleum block needs no introduction. Our purpose in placing him there is to remind all Carmelites that tickets are now on sale for As You Like It in the Forest Theater July 1, 2, 3 and 8, 9, 10, and to announce that the Pine Cone will express delight in the revival of the Shakespeare Festival tradition by dedicating its June 25 issue to Bert Heron, the Forest Theater, As You Like It, and home grown productions of Shakespeare. We shall try to do it with a flourish: color cover by John Cunningham, pictures and stories of the cast, of former Shakespeare productions in the Forest Theater, and an account of how a great tradition has grown.

June Oil Show At Art Association Gallery Is Full Of Life And Vigor

By DORA HAGEMEYER

To the right as one enters the main gallery is a gay picture by Harold Landaker called Grand March, in which all the appurtenances of the circus combine to form a colourful parade. Next to this is Still Life with Flowers by Patricia Cunningham, a fine achievement in line and colour with the nice loose treatment characteristic of this artist, light, fresh and undidactic, airy and free in its blues and lavenders.

Seascape by Doris Winchell Baker is an unusually happy piece of marine painting. It is not easy to present the familiar waves and rocks in a way that is not hackneyed and tiresome, but in this picture the light and motion, the transition of earth to water to air is so dexterously achieved that all is life and movement. Paris 1952 by John Cunningham gives a painter's view of the famous Cathedral from the back, showing the flying buttresses and reflections in the light green water. It is unlaboured and spontaneous, a nice free statement.

Tableau with Relics by Leslie Emery reveals the fine detail of this well-known painter, the treatment of old wood and enamel so realistic that one wishes to touch the canvas to see if the ancient glaze peels off. Piscatorial by Walter Landaker is bold and defiantly abstract, a study in elliptical curves suggested by the fish motif with its interlocking arcs. The strong reds and blacks are very effective and the picture would make a striking contribution to a modern interior.

Landscape by Richard Lofton would also look well in a modern setting. The relation of planes and colour and the undefined but sug-

New Church May Have To Seek Another Use Permit From Planning Board

The New Presbyterian Church may have to approach the Carmel Planning Commission again for a use permit or an extension of the permit granted them May 28 to construct a church on the site at Ocean Avenue between Junipero and Mountain View.

Meeting Wednesday night, officials discussed preliminary plans for the church and included in their thinking was a Sunday school.

Election In August For 10 Cent Tax For School District

A special election will be held August 16 to authorize a tax of 10c for three years, to provide a reserve fund for operating expense of the Carmel Unified School District.

The election was scheduled by the school board, meeting Wednesday evening, on the direction of the county superintendent of schools. All schools in the county received word this month from the county superintendent to the effect that the county will not continue to honor warrants until the schools start building up operating reserves of their own.

In the case of the Carmel district, the requirement is to build up an annual reserve of $22,000 for three years, making a total of $66,000; this amount is to be retained solely for operation of the schools, and may not be used towards building or other school projects.

Reason for the new county ruling is that in the past, the county has had to advance money for school operation for an average of six months out of each year. The schools generally run into the red in the spring and the county has been carrying them until fall, when tax money comes in.

The Carmel district usually scrapes the bottom of the barrel in July; by November of last year, we were $136,000 in the hole. Other school districts were in the same shape, spending on anticipated tax revenue. The new operational reserve will substantially alleviate this problem.

Claude Kinnoull Exhibits Work At Legion Of Honor

An exhibition of religious paintings by Claude Kinnoull opens Saturday, June 26, at the Palace of the Legion of Honor in San Francisco.

The exhibit is comprised of a series of 15 small oils collectively titled The Fifteen Mysteries of the Rosary. Each illustrates one of the phases in the life and Passion of Our Lord on which Catholics meditate when saying devotions to the Virgin Mary beginning with the Annunciation and concluding with the Crowning of Our Lady in Heaven.

The series has never before been displayed in its entirety, save in small private showings. Following the Legion exhibition, which closes July 24, the paintings may be hung for a short time at St. Mary's College and at Dominican College in San Rafael.

Lady Kinnoull received the better part of her art training in her native Paris. Among her instructors

Thursday one of the directors learned that in asking the Planning Commission for a use permit they neglected to include Sunday school in their application. It was not brought into the discussion at the public hearing held on May 19, and not included in the permit granted the church.

The permit provides for only: "the construction of a Presbyterian Church on condition that the main and primary entrance of the church proper shall front on and be accessible only from Junipero Avenue, and upon condition that a wall, to be approved by the Commission, without access through the wall, be erected along the frontage on Torres street, and that the church officials work closely with the Planning Commission on future development of the area before preliminary plans are drawn for a church seating not over 250 people."

There is no permit for building an additional structure for a Sunday school; and whether "a church to seat 250 people" could be stretched to include additional space to house Sunday school quarters in the church building awaits legal interpretation.

If another permit or an extension of the original permit is necessary another public hearing will be required.

Three One-Act Plays Scheduled For August In The Forest Theater

At the last meeting of the Board of Governors of the Forest Theater Guild, held in the Guild Hall with the president, Victor Velissaratos in the chair, final decisions were made regarding the summer production of the Guild on the big open-air stage.

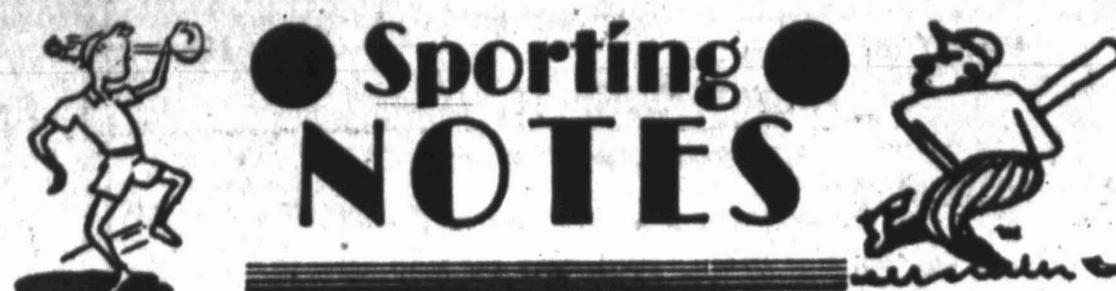

The dates are August 13, 14 15 and 20, 21, 22—two week-ends running through Fridays, Saturdays and Sundays.

Three plays will be presented each night, all of them rich comedies, verging at times on actual farce. The first is The Dark Lady, by Bernard Shaw; the second is Two Gentlemen from Soho, by A. P. Herbert, for many years editor of the British humorous weekly, Punch; the third is Helena's Husband, by Philip Moeller.

The first concerns an assignation of William Shakespeare with Mary Fitton, in which Queen Elizabeth becomes strangely but delightfully involved. The second is a contemporary view on the ways of some rich elderly women, several young gentlemen and private detectives. The third is a theory on how the Trojan War got started, involving the King of Sparta and his too-lovely wife.

The Dark Lady will be directed by Elizabeth Stevens, Two Gentlemen from Soho by Albert Charles Houghton, Helena's Husband by Herbert Heron.

Try-outs for the parts will be announced shortly.

CARMEL JUNIOR LEGION AT SANTA CRUZ TOMORROW

Their crucial league tilt with Monterey rained out last Saturday afternoon, the Carmel Junior Legion baseball team of Post 512 will attempt to retain their high position in league standings at the expense of the Santa Cruz team tomorrow afternoon at the Surf City. The rained-out Monterey game will be made up next Wednesday afternoon at the Carmel High School field.

Tomorrow's joust with Santa Cruz will be the second meeting this season, the Carmel lads clipping the hosts, 8 to 4, in the first league game of Legion play. Post 512 will attempt to do business with an infield of Craig Chapman, catcher; Mike Mosolf, pitcher; Paul Fratessa, first-base; Jim Konrad, second-base; Dick Jennings, third-base; and Bob Michela, shortstop. A flychasing corps of West Whittaker, Kyrk Reid, Clyde Klaumann, and Bill McCormack will go after the long ones.

BASEBALL ACTION FOR BOYS 11-14 AT HIGH SCHOOL FIELD NEXT WEEK

In order to provide baseball experience for youngsters in the 11-14 age bracket, the Carmel Summer Recreation Department has scheduled daily baseball sessions at the high school field from 2 to 4 p.m. Boys in this age group will be given workouts to polish up fundamental skills and will be put through intra-squad games for early competition. As the players progress, outside competition will be scheduled against teams of similar age. Bobby Updike, All-JC shortstop for MPC, and Mike Mosolf, Carmel High pastimer, will handle the workouts for the small fry. All the equipment necessary will be furnished at the field, but bring your glove if you have one. First workout is slated for 2 o'clock Monday, June 20th.

FREE TENNIS LESSONS AT HIGH SCHOOL COURTS ON TUESDAY AND THURSDAY

Each Tuesday and Thursday afternoon from 2 to 4, Carmel boys and girls from the age of 10 and above will have an opportunity to learn racquet skills from Don Prince, veteran Pebble Beach tennis instructor. These sessions are sponsored by the summer recreation program and are free of charge. Participants should wear tennis shoes and bring their own racquet if they have one. However, racquets and balls will be furnished at the courts for those needing them.

All youngsters planning to join the tennis classes should report to the high school courts at 2 o'clock on Tuesday. At the first meeting, participants will be divided into groups and given a lesson time.

DICK WEER POWERS PINE CONE TO WIN OVER SANTA CRUZ SPORTSMEN

Manager Joe Nicholson's Pine Cone softball nine made their first road trip a huge success last Friday night, downing the Santa Cruz Sportsmen, 7 to 2, as Dick Weer powered two home runs to blitz the Sports. Weer's first four-master kept the Coners on even terms with the hosts with the score locked up 2-2 going into the fifth inning. In the top of the fifth the printers, loaded the sacks and Weer flexed his muscles to drive a bases-loaded homer clear out of the stadium. Besides the pair of round-trippers, Weer picked up a single to finish the evening with a solid three for four. Jim Morton pitched the win for the Coners, giving up 5 hits and striking out 10 Santa Cruz swingers.

The Santa Cruz nine, one of the best played by the Pine Cone this season, will be seen in action at Sunset Field in the near future. The Sportsmen showed the Coners some real Santa Cruz hospitality and made the trip very enjoyable for the Carmel softballers.

The Pine Cone continued its winning ways at Pacific Grove Monday night, whacking the Salinas Sports Shop, 4 to 1, in an exhibition game. Besides throwing a two-hitter at Salinas, pitcher Bob Morton blasted two hits in three chances to lead the mace wielders. The win over Salinas may prove costly to the printers as their star outfielder, Marty Hanson, chipped a bone in his wrist and will be out of action for several weeks.

DEL MONTE CRICKET CLUB SCORES OVER BEARS

Paced by the brilliant scoring exhibition of Allan Foulkes and the steady bowling of Eskild Bonneycke, the Del Monte Cricket Club registered a convincing 114-32 win over the visiting Golden Gate Club of San Francisco. Played at the Carmel High School field, the game drew an enthusiastic gallery of cricket experts who revelled in the fine performance turned in by the local bat and wicket crew. Captain Foulkes found the Golden Gate bowling much to his liking as he tallied 67 scores to lead his mates with the bat.

Next cricket action at the local field is scheduled for June 27th when the Olympic Club of San Francisco engages the Del Monte Club in a Price Cup match.

SUMMER PROGRAM SET TO GO MONDAY MORNING

With the Day Camp activities getting a head start this week and well settled into camping routine, the total summer recreation program swings out Monday morning and continues until August 21st. All the Carmel schools will be staffed with playground supervisors trained in leading youngsters in play and craft activities. With the inclusion of the River School in the program of recreation sites, all areas of Carmel will be pretty well covered. Besides the swimming program which has always been one of the foremost activities at the high school, the high school gym will be used for afternoon badminton for girls in the 10-14 age group, Monday and Wednesday evening basketball for the high school and college groups, and evening badminton on Tuesday, Thursday, and Friday for adults. The high school cafeteria will be used for square dancing on the junior level Wednesday afternoon from 2 to 4, and the adults will take over on Thursday and Friday night for folk and square dancing. Tennis instruction under the expert tutelage of Don Prince will be offered boys and girls on Tuesday and Thursday afternoons from 2 to 4. Bob Updike will teach the fundamentals of baseball to boys in the 11-15 age group at the high school field from 2-4 each afternoon. These lads will have an opportunity to play in bigger little-league type of competition against teams from Monterey, Pacific Grove, Santa Cruz, and Salinas.

The Sunset Playground will offer a full program of softball for boys and girls and will have the usual organized games for all ages. Although the Woods and River schools are limited in space, there will be plenty of play activity to occupy the smaller youngsters.

Programs showing the complete summer recreation plan are available at all the school offices.

RED CROSS SWIM PROGRAM STARTS MONDAY MORNING

On Monday morning at 10:30 sharp, four Red Cross Water Safety Instructors will be on hand at the high school to teach Carmel boys and girls how to swim, how to swim better, how to swim even better, and for those in the seventh grade or above, how to become members of the junior life-saving corps. It is not necessary to register for the swimming courses ahead of time. Just bring the kids to the pool or have them catch the school bus which runs along San Carlos street shortly after ten o'clock. Swim participants must have their own bathing suit and towel and it is a good idea for the girls to have swim caps.

SQUARE DANCING IS FUN

Boys and girls in the 6-9 grade level will have an opportunity to try out their square dancing skill next Wednesday afternoon at the high school cafeteria from 2 to 4 o'clock. Square dancing as offered by Mr. Rice turns into a riot of fast activity which is lots of fun and lots of good exercise. Youngsters are encouraged to try these square dance sessions and see if they can stand the pace.

Adults go through their square dance paces on Friday evening from 8 to 10 o'clock at the high school cafeteria, and on Thursday evening from 8-10, Sterling Hall leads the folk dancers at the same place. Lots of fun at these sessions.

DAY CAMPERS GETTING USED TO PIONEER LIFE

For the past week participants in the Day Camp program have been roughing it in the Carmel Valley and are gradually working into good shape for the longer hikes which lie ahead. This year's Day Camp is located at the Holman's Guest Ranch picnic area and features hiking, nature study, crafts, outdoor living, swimming, and an overnight at the end of the session. The 8 and 9 year olds take to the hills on Wednesdays (Continued on Page Thirteen)

Dedication Sunday Of New Church Site Is Culmination Of Dr. Rogers' Devoted Career In The Ministry

BY ROSE GIANSIRACUSA

A vision of 20 years ago will become a reality this Sunday noon when the congregation and friends of the new Carmel Presbyterian Church meet to dedicate the site at Ocean Avenue and Junipero street where the new church is to be built.

The late Reverend Willis White left a parcel of property 20 years ago under the jurisdiction of his sister Miss Margaret White

He was a member of the Rotarians in Kansas City, and has served as president of the Council of Churches. He has always taken an active interest in civic affairs. It was through his efforts and inspiration that a Home for Convalescent and Employed Women was born, and stands adjacent to the Linwood church. A non-denominational institution of far-reaching influence for good, and a lasting memorial to the Rogers'.

Dr. Rogers was born in a little mountain town of Mt. Sterling, Kentucky, September 6, 1877, one of five children. His father was an Elder in the Presbyterian church there, and had hopes that his son, Harry, would one day study law.

However, in his senior year at Center College, Danville, Kentucky, he decided on the ministry for his life's work. Following his graduation from McCormick Theological Seminary and his ordination in April, 1902, he served in a little country church about 100 miles from Chicago. At this time he met Fannie Andrews of Flemingsburg, Kentucky; they were married in October of 1902, and the two embarked on a career of devoting themselves to the work of serving God and their fellow man, which has continued for over 50 years. They have two married daughters and three grandchildren.

In 1907 he was called to the pulpit of the Linwood Presbyterian church in Kansas City, Missouri, where, with an exception of an interlude in 1918 when he served as an Army Chaplain in France, he remained until 1940.

In 1928, while at Linwood, he was invited by Center College, to serve as president. It was an attractive offer but great pressure was brought to bear by his congregation, especially the young people, and the family chose to remain. For nine years Dr. Rogers served as a member of the General Council of the General Assembly of Churches. He was a member of the committee to prepare the handbook in the Presbyterian Hymnal under the direction of Christian Education. In addition to several books of hymns, he published another book, Walking With God. He served on the board of trustees of the McCormick Theological Seminary and of the Park and Lindenwood Colleges.

under the able leadership of Dr. Rogers. That same year an invitation of the American Steamship Lines came to be their guest and Protestant Chaplain on a six week cruise to the Orient. The offer came on the eve of the Rogers' Golden Wedding Anniversary. They visited Hawaii, the Philippines, Hong Kong and Japan, returning with many vivid accounts of their experiences. On their return from this trip a small new chapel being built adjoining the College City Lakeside church was named and dedicated, "The Dr. and Mrs. Harry Clayton Rogers Chapel" in token of appreciation of their outstanding services in the organization of the beautiful Lakeside Presbyterian church.

In June 1935 Dr. Rogers was commissioned by the National Council of Churches as an exchange preacher with the churches of Europe. He and Mrs. Rogers visited Italy, Switzerland, Germany, France, England and Scotland. He preached in various churches, met with church leaders and visited historic places. On his return from Europe another attempt was made to lure him away from Linwood pulpit when he received an invitation to fill the pulpit of the First Presbyterian church in Hollywood, California, which was to become the largest Presbyterian church in the world. But again the congregation and, as Dr. Rogers feels, Divine Providence intervened, and he remained to see the fulfillment of his dream which was the Convalescent Hospital mentioned before.

Present at the gathering this Sunday will be representatives of the City of Carmel, of the San Jose Presbytery and San Francisco. Dr. Rogers will preside and introduce them, and another church will be born under the direction and inspiration of Dr. Rogers, a true leader of men and follower of God, whose church has the Golden text for every day: "Now abideth faith, hope and love, these three, and the greatest of these is love."

Dr. Rogers has always had a deep and sincere appreciation of beauty. He has a poetic nature, is a lover of music, joy and laughter. He has a keen sense of humor and above all is a doer of good things. He has the remarkable ability to see things in their true perspective. He and his wife have worked together side by side throughout the years, and are still working together. They have always contended, "We are all strong, we are all weak, and each has a need another may cure."

Gas and electricity
are cheap in California

When the Husteds moved to California, they were delighted to discover that all their appliances cost less to run.

Their P. G. and E. bill in one month was $9.70

In their former home, the same amount of gas and electricity would cost $17.56

With gas and electricity so cheap in California, you pay less to run appliances, so you can enjoy more of them. Incidentally, if you're shopping for a wedding present, why not give an electrical gift!

"In one month my toaster made 200 slices of toast, for just 6¢

"My family really enjoys the crisp, brown toast we get from our wonderful automatic toaster! And I was amazed when I discovered how little it costs to run. Why, we had a whole month's worth of toast for breakfast and snacks—200 slices of it—for just 6¢ operating cost. That's my idea of a bargain. All our appliances give us real pleasure, and they cost so little to operate."

(Continued from Page One) gested forms are very stimulating. December in California by C. B. Rogers reports the almost leafless sycamores that straggle against our early winter landscape, and in contrast to the nature pictures, the lively One of the Rough String by Jack Swanson gives a sudden stroke of life and action in its vibrant straining lines and rodeo-violent forms. The sandy light in this picture is particularly suitable to the dusty surroundings.

Lobos Trail by Jane Buffington looks out through the lines of cypresses to the illuminated landscape, and Study by Harry Yoshizumi gives a particularly clear interpretation of the relationship between light, surface and mass. In this picture the planes of light move in true sequence from distance to foreground, penetrating the solid and giving firmness to the delicate.

The Seventh Wave by Kathryn Bradley is a most original picture. The great translucent wave comes booming up behind the rocks and seems to surge out of the canvas. Memories of the South Pacific by Joe Ataide is full of the primitive love of colour and grotesque expression. Portrait of LeRoy by Marjorie Pitman is strong and warm in colour with a nice confident treatment of the facial structure.

In the Alcove, the first picture is a very simple study by Rep

Matteson, all in one colour and its variations, outlined by black. Monterey Meadow by Freda Fisher is an evening landscape in restrained values, quiet and undemonstrative. Taormina by Jeanette Lewis depicts a lighted street with doorways, sunny with the Sicilian atmosphere. Church at El Estero by Russell Swan is clear true painting, with its eucalyptus trees and water forming a foreground for the little church. The Dancer by Barbara West is a sensitive portrait, full of elusive values, and Still Life by Harvey Williamson is a strong, capable and luminous piece of work. Virginia City Ruins by Jay Hannah Jr. is a sudden contrast with its antique, mossy surfaces and shadows, restrained and subdued. Island Mother by Linford Donovan is a warm-toned portrait of a brown-skinned mother and son. Backyards by Zenas Potter has a narrative quality close to human living, with its geranium pots and sulphur evening sky above the back alleys of daily life. Breaking Surf by Alfred Wands is a dramatic marine picture. Fisherman by Marjorie Doolittle is one of the most interesting pictures in the whole exhibit. It is painted in this fine artist's translucent style, as though she had penetrated beyond the surface into the living essence. The light, the nets, the forms, the golden glow suffusing the whole subject, the depth beyond depth all contribute to making an impression which is a moving experience. One does not merely look at such a picture, but into it and through it.

Red Bud by F. Burgdorff, with its fresh mountain water almost splashing from the canvas, and Still Life by Jessie MacGregor, with its full rich colour, carry on the tradition of these two painters. Point Lobos by E. Cashion MacLennan gives yet another interpretation of our beautiful coast. Moon on the Bay by Sam Harris with its gleam on the shadowed water, glitter of lights in the distant circle of the bay, storm clouds and purple darkness is a convincing night-picture. Sand Castles by Mildred Kaucher is a delicately-coloured and original study of tide-edge, shells and footprints bordering the veined water.

Again It's Spring proves once more the ability of Nell Walker Warner to paint flowers. They are accomplished with a sure and capable hand, sensitive to light and form, and combining the delicacy and strength essential to good flower painting. Addie Lee by Florence True is a portrait enhanced by a translucent treatment of the light, and Still Life with Herring by Gerald Wasserman is solid with rich colour, reds and deep blues contrasted with the yellow-green apples mottled with russets. Rhythm by Ruth Cooke is a patterned whirl of colour, and Road to the Sea by Joseph Bennett invites the eye into a real landscape of eucalyptus trees and blue distance. The Narcissus Bowl by N. J. McMahon is another well-painted flower study, of which there are several in the show. Its ability to project the important feature is notable. Giant Rock by A. G. Warshawsky is full of warm gold and green and ripe fields. It is our familiar landscape heightened by the painter's perception of a special mood and the dominance of its relative colour. It is spacious and generous.

Ranunculus by Kathryn Aurner has a veil-like treatment of pinks and yellows, elusive and transparent, and Leyte Lagoon by Clarence Bates is a study in tropical greens and luminous reflections. The native-made bridge and the boat with a sail give a feeling of the islands, and the whole picture is transfused with a pleasing moist green shade. Azaleas by Mary Miller, with its apricot-coloured sunny flowers in an earthenware pot, surrounded by torn Chinese paper, concludes a most interesting exhibit. A review of the watercolours and other pictures will appear next week.

Children To Climb Story Mountain In Summer Reading Club

All children of Carmel are invited to join the Mountaineer's Reading Club at the Carmel Library this summer. Anyone from the second to the eighth grade may participate, and may choose any books suitable to his age and grade.

Club members will join in an expedition to conquer Story Mountain, which closely resembles Mt. Everest. Starting from a Base Camp, they will make their way from camp to camp, until the summit is reached. Each member of the expedition will be represented on the mountain by a small Mountaineer bearing the member's name.

Many new books are on display in the Children's room. There is something of interest to all ages and all tastes.

There will be a story hour for children from five to ten years of age, starting on Friday morning at 10:00 o'clock. All children will be welcome.

Letters To The Pine Cone

CALIFORNIA STATE FEDERATION OF TEACHERS

70 Robley Road, Corral de Tierra
Salinas, Calif., May 30, 1954Mrs. Wilma Cook, Editor
Carmel Pine Cone-Cymbal
Carmel, Calif.

Dear Mrs. Cook:

On April 18 your paper contained an editorial referring to the California Teacher Association's recent adoption of a policy to "help teachers to develop in pupils a greater recognition of God and religion as factors in our culture and a desire to participate in the religious life of their communities." You indicated an interest in watching developments to see how the expressed policy is put into effect.

In your May 28 issue you ran a letter from Dr. Arthur Corey, Secretary of the CTA, re-iterating his organization's new policy, and claiming it has nothing to do with any degree of sectarianism. (Recalling the lines: "Yes, my darling daughter, you may go for a swim but don't go near the water.")

All of us must take an interest in how the CTA's new policy is carried out—if it is to be carried out. It may remain a pious verbiage, in which case many people will applaud the good intentions of the organization espousing it, after which everyone will happily forget it. It will remain in the category of being in favor of home, mother, the flag, and against sin. Nobody will object and there will be no observable results of any sort. If that is all it amounts to, the writer certainly can have no objection to such innocuous word-spinning.

However, in these days of growing totalitarian threats to our liberties, any step in the direction of breaking down the separation of church and state must be carefully watched and any undesirable developments must be opposed.

Dr. Corey's organization helped defeat the effort at the last regular session of the state legislawhatsoever to influence our children as to whether or not they should become part of the church member minority or of the non-church member majority of our population.

Based upon centuries of experience our western civilization has learned that the way for the sects to avoid mutual hatred and strife is through tolerance with the schools maintaining a neutral attitude toward them.

Our schools can now teach the role of churches and religious leaders in history. In English courses a limited amount of religious writing can be included, but with no proselytizing. The schools can, and do, spend much time on manners and morals—which can include anything "spiritual" desired except sectarian ritual and preachments.

In the opinion of the writer the schools are now able to do whatever is reasonably desirable in the way of moral and "spiritual" teaching, but are properly forbidden by law to get into the field of sectarian religion. This is as it should be. It is to be hoped that the CTA will not attempt to precipitate sectarian warfare and violation of the religious freedom of non-church members by actually attempting to put their new policy into effect.

Sincerely yours,
Fred Clayton,
Corresponding Secretary
California Federation of Teachers

William R. Knox of Boston, Monday was named President of The Mother Church, The First Church of Christ, Scientist, in Boston, Massachusetts, at the Annual Meeting of The Mother Church attended by Christian Scientists from many parts of the world.

Mr. Knox's appointment was announced by The Christian Science Board of Directors. The term of office is for one year. He has been an authorized Christian Science practitioner in Boston—the world headquarters of the Christian Science movement—for almost 50 years.

Prior to devoting his full time to the practice of Christian Science healing, Mr. Knox was in the structural steel business. He first became interested in Christian Science through the healing of his mother.

Mr. Knox has served the denomination in a variety of posts.

PART V

I should not even attempt to tell you of Westminster Abbey. This national sanctuary is so overwhelming in grandeur and historical interest that a whole book could hardly do it justice; but let me give you a few historical facts, supplied by my family, and as I give them attempt to tell something of what I saw there also.

Every one has seen pictures of the beautiful Gothic building which is Westminster Abbey, so I shall not try to describe its outward appearance.

One record says that it was originally the abbey church of a monastery founded during the reign of King Offar of Mercia. Another record has it that it was built by King Sebert of Essex on Thorney Island on the Thames in 616. Anyway, Dunstan, in 971, had some work done on the Abbey, whether he restored it after a fire, enlarged it, or rebuilt it is not clear. Edward the Confessor had a palace at Westminster and built a church in 1049-65 on the site of the present Abbey, calling it Westminster Abbey. Henry III reconstructed the church in the thirteenth century. The work was continued by his successors, slowly and with long interruptions, and the nave was finally completed in the fifteenth century. The nave is said to be the loftiest in England, being 101 feet 8 inches. The Chapel of Henry VII was added in 1502-20 under Henry VIII. The two west towers, designed by Sir Christopher Wren, were finished by Hawksmoore after Sir Christopher's death (1722-40) and the north transept was restored in 1890.

The lofty Henry VII's Chapel within the Abbey is very ornate. Above the rich carvings on both sides of the aisle hang coat-of-arms-embroidered banners in close rows, forming a colorful canopy on each side. It is famous for its fan-tracery ceiling, the fans being of exquisitely carved wood arranged in pleasing patterns.

Many a royal marriage has been solemnized before the High Altar of Westminster Abbey, including that of the lovely young Queen Elizabeth II. Every English King and ruling Queen since Edward the Confessor was crowned there. The Coronation Chair has beneath it the famous Stone of Scone, brought from Scotland by Edward I, and carried off by the Scots in 1951. It is now back in its place under the Coronation Chair.

Thirteen of England's kings are buried in Westminster Abbey, the first being Edward the Confessor, and every king from Henry III to George II, including Henry V and his lovely queen. There also rests the Unknown Soldier; the two Pitts, Hastings, Gladstone, and many other statesmen have also been granted this honor, and in the Poets' Corner, in the South Transept, rest Chaucer, Spenser, Browning, Tennyson, Kipling and many others whose work we love. The Abbey has also burial places for the clergy, scientists, actors, musicians, and other artists.

Westminster School, founded by Queen Elizabeth I in 1560, uses the ancient dormitory of the Abbey as a school room, and its refectory as a dining room. The last has several very old tapestries and ancient stained glass.

Attending services in Westminster Abbey is a deeply-felt experience. Hearing the sweet voices of the boys' choir was to me worth a trip to London.

With a little preparatory reading and a few notes highlighting important events in which the Abbey played its part in England's turbulent and bloody history, one can get a fair picture of the importance of Westminster Abbey, though it strains one's incredulity to accept the picture thus created. For it is an awesome picture of the world's everlasting unrest and man's aptitude for creating trouble for himself and others. It would be a hopeless picture but for the human

MOUNTAIN MIRROR

*There is nothing to see in the stillness
But the glittering silver track
Of planets and dust of planets.
The lake is dreaming and black.
Invisible pines in the deepness;
Unseen, the long granite scars—
But caught in obsidian water
The wavering fire of stars
Wherever I am I'll remember
That somewhere, waiting, apart,
A dark lake gleams on the mountain—
And stars burn in its heart.*

—MARGERY ALYN BISHOP.

PASTICHE POEM

*Permit this poor and pallid art
A moment of uncommon fire!
A throat for dissonance, a tempo stepped
To furioso on the blowing wind.
No more the sweet suffices, nor the proud
Pure line unleashes portent.
Break rhythm. Free the flame.
An end is a beginning held in seed.
Dare, die to beauty and come forth!*

—BRYHER BANCROFT.

GOLDEN GATE BRIDGE

*Here now combine the delicate and strong:
This graceful web fine-strung across the bay
Held by the two high finger-tips in space.
Against the blue of ocean and of sky
The lines of pure vermillion truly drawn
Describe a twentieth-century design—
Yet holding this great artifact in place
The mighty piers and cables bear the strain
Of weight and stress with silent tensile strength.
The road lies firmly with its moving freight
Across the wind-swept hollow void beneath,
And frail humanity with thoughtless trust
Accepts the wonder as a commonplace,
To power oblivious and to beauty blind.*

—D. H.

LETTER TO ONE AWAY

*I would translate the green of the field of young oats
Into syllables of delight.
I would set the wing of a starling
To music.
I would put the amber arc of the sunrise
In an oratorio
And write this whole beloved landscape
Into a symphony of wonder.
For you.*

courage and determination which shines through it all.

Going alone to Westminster Abbey, and sitting there in its empty vastness, it is easy to ignore reality and slip into a sort of self-hypnosis and feel the presence of the people who had come there, through the centuries, to give thanks for their happiness and good fortune, or, filled with misgivings about the uncertain future, had come to pray for comfort and peace of mind. One could feel their presence; they were there. One's mind became eyes and ears and understanding. Their doubts, their tension, their despairs and terror and suffering thoughts became ours to share.

The Abbey had seen much joy too, which one also feels. Only a few days earlier we had again seen moving pictures of the coronation of Britain's young queen, and had seen many of the jewels worn during the ceremony. In Westminster Abbey, where the ceremony had taken place, it was easy to picture the spectacle and fill the emptiness of the Abbey with the young queen in her coronation robe, and the gorgeously dressed people who took part in the pageant.

Other sights in London are the ancient churches, many in Central London, all indicated on the little map. Among these are St. Martin's-in-the-Field, built in 1721-26, famous for its crypt which remains open all night to provide shelter for London's destitute.

Cleopatra's Needle, brought from Egypt, stands on the embankment between Waterloo and Charing Cross Bridges, and near St. Paul's on Paternoster Row are numerous book stores carrying old and new books as well as prints, and are as interesting to book-lovers as the outdoor book stalls in Paris.

The monument is down this way too, commemorating the great fire of 1666 which destroyed 88 churches and the buildings on 396 acres in downtown London. This followed the great plague which swept London in 1665, and I was variously told that the fire was started to destroy plague infection, and that it started in a baker's place in Pudding Lane. Be that as it may, it seemed that the plague gradually disappeared after the fire.

Madame Tussaud's used to be a tourist must. Here are England's great and infamous reproduced in wax, sometimes with a scene or two which gave them their fame or infamy. The Chambers of Horrors is gory entertainment, recreating the worst crimes committed in London. Madame Tussaud's must have lost its attraction. I heard no one saying they had been there.

The old Petticoat Lane, now called Middlesex Street, was as lively and full of tourists as ever. We went there on Sunday morning, taking the underground, and had a hilarious time. The fun and wit of the costermongers may well be compared with that of the fish-peddlers of Bergen and the fish-wives of Copenhagen. We bought a few of the carnival-type trinkets to hear the delightful but almost completely unintelligible Cockney speech. We missed the gaily embroidered gala clothes, intricately embroidered with pearl buttons which had come to mean the costermonger's "national" costume. There was not one to be seen.

Leaving Middlesex Street, again on the underground, we asked directions to bus No. 73, which we took to Richmond, the end of the line. There we had lunch in a glass-enclosed dining room overlooking the Thames and the paths following the river. Although it was October, the day was warm though overcast, and most of the benches along the river were occupied by families who had come for the day and brought a basket lunch. On the little platforms built along the river, fishermen were busily baiting hooks and casting and pulling in the lines. But later, when we strolled along the river, we saw no fish caught by them. River traffic was brisk, and the small pleasure craft seemed filled to capacity.

Unitarian Fellowship Sunday

George V. Matousek, an instructor in Czechoslovakian at the Army Language School, will address the Unitarian Fellowship Sunday evening on the subject, Religion, Values and the Interpretation of Values.

Mr. Matousek came to this country from his native Czechoslovakia, where he studied at the University of Prague. During the war he was active in the anti-communist underground; he was caught and sent to a forced labor camp, but eventually escaped and managed to cross the border into the American Zone in Germany.

The public is invited to the meeting, which will take place at 7:30 o'clock in the Carmel Girl Scout House.

Woman's Club Names Officers

The annual meeting of the Carmel Woman's club was held June 7, with principal business being the election of new officers for the coming club year.

Dr. Zoe Johnston was elected to her third term as president of the club, and was complimented for her fine leadership under which the club has experienced both a sizeable increase in memberships and an exceptionally fine series of programs.

Other officers elected are as follows: Mrs. Rhea Diveley, first vice-president; Mrs. V. R. Woodruff, recording secretary; Mrs. Kenneth Ray, corresponding secretary; Mrs. H. C. Schroeder, treasurer. Heading committees will be Mrs. H. W. Roemer, ways and means; Mrs. Carl E. Menneken, publicity; Mrs. Thornton Allen, card section; Mrs. Phillipine Creelius, garden section; Mrs. Mildred Curti, house chairman; and Mrs. Alex W. Cleary, hospitality chairman.

Wilders Here From Wyoming

The Cree Wilders arrived Saturday in Carmel for a two months' vacation away from their ranch in Wyoming. Ranching in the great outdoors is great stuff but, in Mrs. Wilder's words, "it's sure good to see trees again!" The Wilders have undertaken the forestation of their country estate to the extent of having already planted some 200 young trees, but still have a couple of thousand more to put in the ground.

Chief Klaumann Off Duty

If anyone has any gripes about parking tickets, bashed fenders, barking dogs or obstreperous neighbors during the next two weeks, don't mention it to Police Chief Clyde Klaumann—he's on vacation. Clyde donned mufti on Tuesday; Sgt. Earl Wermuth will be the high brass at the department in his absence.

As for the chief's vacation plans, they are a very marvel of simplicity, involving nothing more than putting around at home—no big trip, no visiting relatives, no ambitious junketing to Scenic Landmarks. If the spirit moves, Clyde says, he might just get some painting done around the house. He'll don his badge again on June 29.

Aldouses To Islands

Mr. and Mrs. Wildred Aldous leave Monday by plane for the Hawaiian Islands, where they intend to spend a restful month touring and sightseeing pretty much as the spirit moves. First off, they'll have a week in Honolulu at the Surf Lodge, owned by former Carmelite Peggy Long. They also plan to get together with two other Carmel couples, the DeWitt Ruckers and the Charles Scovilles, and hope to cross trails with the Adolph Hankes, who are also enjoying Island vacations.

Later the Aldouses plan a leisurely cruise through the various islands, with stopoffs at points of interest. They will spend several days at the famed Volcano

House and generally explore around before returning for a final week in Honolulu. They plan to be back in Carmel around the end of July, when Mr. Aldous will return to his position as resident manager of Reynolds and Company.

Stratton-Gargiulo Wedding

Honeymooning in Honolulu are Mr. and Mrs. William Gargiulo (June Stratton), who departed for their new home in the Islands following their wedding Saturday afternoon at St. John's Chapel, Del Monte.

The service was read by the Rev. Bernard Lovgren. The bride was escorted to the altar by her father, Dr. Ernest K. Stratton, who moved to Carmel last November after having practiced some 28 years in San Francisco. Her maid of honor was Lois van Eps of Los Angeles, while two Carmel friends, Mrs. Robert Weer and Mrs. Donn Appleton, acted as bridesmaids.

June's bouffant waltz-length gown was fashioned of dotted white nylon marquisette over taffeta, simply styled with a boat neck, long sleeves and a cummerbund waistline. Her fingertip veil was held by a pearl-embroidered Juliet cap, and she carried a cascade of white orchids, stephanotis and fleur d'amour.

White organdy dotted with red made the costume worn by June's honor attendant; red linen shoes and a bandeau and bouquet of red and white carnations carried out the color accent. The two bridesmaids wore identical frocks of blue-dotted organdy, accented by blue linen shoes and headbands and nosegays of blue and white bachelor buttons.

Standing up with Bill was Bruce Hanger of Carmel; groomsmen were Richard Nicholas, Perry Brown, Arthur Templeman and Mick Appleton. Dick Gargiulo, originally slated to be his brother's best man, sent wedding congratulations from Korea, where he was recently sent by the Army; also unable to be present was the bride's brother, Bruce, who is serving with the state department in Bonn, Germany.

The wedding reception was held in the Copper Cup Room at the Naval Postgraduate School, where a large group of local and out-of-town friends of the young couple gathered to wish them bon voyage.

Once established in their new home, Bill plans to continue his college work at the University of Hawaii, while June, a registered nurse, will join the staff of Queen's Hospital in Honolulu. The son of Mr. and Mrs. William Gargiulo, Sr., of Carmel, Bill served with the Navy during the Korean war; he was president of his 1948 graduating class at Carmel High, and has attended both San Jose State and Monterey Peninsula College. June was graduated from Dominican Convent in San Rafael, and received her nurse's training at Children's Hospital in San Francisco.

Mari Thatcher Earns Wings

Mari Lynn Thatcher, daughter of Mrs. Carr Thatcher of Carmel, has just won the silver wings of a United Airlines stewardess, following five weeks at the company's stewardess training school in Cheyenne, Wyoming. Mari is now serving aboard airliners flying in and out of San Francisco.

A graduate of Reno High School, Mari attended San Jose State College, where she was affiliated with Delta Gamma sorority. Her off-hours hobbies are designing, music and sports.

Son For The Shepards

Stanley Jay Shepard, who put in his appearance at Peninsula Hospital June 7, came within a handful of days of having to share a birthday with his older sister, Geraldine, who was seven on June 9. The eight pound, eight ounce boy is the first son for Mr. and Mrs. Willis Shepard, and the grandson of Mrs. Estelle Shepard of Pacific Grove and Mrs. Katherine Wilhelm of Wheatland, Wyoming. Mrs. Wilhelm is visiting the Shepards and helping to get small Stanley settled in his new home.

Canoles Make Northwest Circuit

Even Saturday's drizzle didn't dampen the spirits of Mr. and Mrs. Jack Canoles, who returned home last weekend after a three-plus weeks' vacation in the northwest and Canada. Consulting their travel statistics, the Canoles figured they logged 4700 miles on the road, not counting five different ferryboat trips, crossed the international boundary four times and the great divide eight times. Non-statistically, the Canoles found the weather variable, the scenery spectacular, and the people—particularly the Canadians—completely wonderful.

First item on their itinerary was Victoria, British Columbia, where Jack attended a three-day convention of the Metropolitan Life Insurance Honor Club at the Empress Hotel. En route to Canada, they stopped off at Davis for a visit with the Bud Zanettas (Pat Canoles) and at Camas, Washington, with Mr. Canoles' niece Mary McCallister Mace, and her husband Jim (Mrs. Mace formerly worked as a lab technician at Peninsula Hospital). The Canoles arrived in Victoria just in time for the anniversary of Queen Victoria's birthday, which was celebrated with appropriate ruffles and flourishes, including a huge parade complete with red-coated Mounties and kilted Scotch pipers.

Leaving Victoria, the Canoles motored to Nanaimo, then took the boat over to Vancouver, saw the sights, and headed off for Banff and Lake Louise. Snow—the heaviest fall in 40 years—had closed most of the resorts, so they drove on to Glacier National Park, then to Yellowstone for a two-day stopover. Snow caught up with them again at Jackson Hole, and they battled their way around the Tetons in a virtual blizzard. But all was sunny in Reno, where they stopped for a visit with the John Magaldis (Carol Canoles), and so back to Carmel.

Barbara Josselyn Off To Europe

The Tal Josselyns said bon voyage yesterday to their daughter, Barbara, who is off on a 12-weeks' tour of the British Isles, Western Europe and Scandinavia.

The tour is sponsored by the University of California, and made up of some 36 students and recent grads, shepherded by a Danish exchange student. Barbara and the rest of the convoy got under way yesterday at San Francisco Airport; first stop will be London, then on to Scotland, France, Switzerland, Italy, Germany, Norway and Sweden. They'll take in the music festival at Edinburgh, dabble their toes in the fountains of Rome, make the fabled Rhine journey by riverboat, see the opera in Paris and take a steam cruise in the fjords of Norway, among numerous other experiences.

For Barbara, a high point of the trip promises to be Paris, where she plans to spend several days with a former Carmel friend, Beatrice Douglas. Beatrice has been studying art in Milan, but will return to Paris next month to arrange a posthumous show of sculpture by her father, the late Bruce Douglas. The Douglasses lived in Carmel during the last war, and have many friends here; Beatrice and her mother now make their home on a farm a short distance from Paris, where Barbara will join them.

In September, Barbara will transfer her residence to Oakland, where she has accepted a teaching position for the fall. A 1950 graduate of U. C., Barbara took post-graduate work for her teaching credential and for the past year has been teaching elementary school in Monterey.

Reimers Boys Are Home

Gunnar and Niels Reimers arrived here Sunday for a visit at home with their parents, Mr. and Mrs. Niels Reimers, Sr. Gunnar, who was graduated June 7 from St. Olaf College in Minnesota, is considering a job as junior physician at an Air Force base in Dayton, Ohio, while Niels, Jr. leaves shortly for summer flight training at an airbase in Texas.

The two boys arrived home together, Gunnar detouring on his drive back from Minnesota by way of Corvallis to pick up his brother at Oregon State College, which Niels is attending on an ROTC scholarship. Both boys graduated from Carmel High. Gunnar attended MPC prior to St. Olaf and Niels studied at Stanford before entering Oregon.

Paul's An Executive Yet

Paul Warner, who received his bachelor's degree in journalism Sunday from Stanford University, didn't wait until after graduation to look for a job: he started on a new job a week ago, before the ink had hardly dried on his final exams.

The job is a real daisy, too—assistant director at KGO-TV in San Francisco. Paul made his initial contacts at the studio last summer, when he took a temporary job there following his release from three years overseas duty with the Navy. He entered Stanford following his graduation from Carmel High in 1948, but his college career was interrupted by the service; he finished off his senior year this past winter and spring.

Paul's bosses were lenient and let him take a day off the first week on the job, so that he could participate in the commencement exercises at Stanford. Present for the ceremonies were his parents, Captain and Mrs. S. H. Warner, and his grandmother Mrs. Ida Warner, and his brother and sister-in-law, Bill and Betty Lou Warner, who came up from Palos Verdes for the occasion.

Sunshine and Soapsuds

When buying summer furniture be sure you get washable coverings and cushions. The plastic combinations are great because you can scrub them with lukewarm soapy water.

Anything from stack-up chairs to a patio umbrella should be able to face both sunshine and soapsuds.

Which brings us to the subject of water. The waterworks business, the largest single industry in the nation, depends upon three things—the bounty of Nature, the ingenuity of man, and a barrel of money to provide the complicated physical plant required to bring good, safe water to you when and where you want it.

Walt Kreisler, Miss Stiles To Wed
Parting is such sweet sorrow—but Walter Kreisler, who bade a fond goodbye yesterday to his bride-to-be, Miss Barbara Ann Stiles, won't have to suffer for much more than a week.

Miss Stiles is now driving east to her family's home in Red Oak, Iowa. Walt will follow by plane next Saturday, and on July 4 the couple will exchange vows at a simple ceremony in the home of the bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. L. A. Nelson.

Disregarding the slight paradox in getting married on what is supposedly Independence Day, Walt claims that their July 4 wedding date has certain distinct advantages—for one thing, he'll not be likely to overlook their anniversary.

The new Mr. and Mrs. Kreisler plan to drive home by a circuitous route which will take them through the Black Hills country, Yellowstone and the Grand Tetons, up to Boise and westwards on the Columbia River highway to the coast. They may stop at Gold Hills, Oregon, for a riverboat trip on the Rogue River, before continuing on to the Peninsula. The Kreislers expect to be back in Carmel around July 15, and will make their home here at Junipero and Eighth streets.

Miss Stiles moved to Carmel a year ago, having previously spent eight years in Napa. Walt, a native of Philadelphia, lived for many years in Beverly Hills. He has been a Carmel resident for the past nine years, and is local representative of the A.A.A.

Royden Martins Summering Here
Carmel-born artist Royden Martin and his wife, the former Betty Hackett, are returning here for the summer. The couple have been living in Stockton for the past few years, Royden busying himself with portrait commissions and Betty operating a dance studio (her latest project was the choreography for the recent College of the Pacific production of Paint Your Wagon).

Royden, the son of the Roy Martins of Carmel Valley, started his art career here as a landscapist—at one time he taught art at the Carmel Adult School. He continued to paint while stationed in France during the last war, and a collection of his works was given a one-man show at the Carmel Art Gallery. Following the war he moved to Stockton and began to devote himself to portraiture, with particular emphasis on children's portraits; his success in this work has brought him portrait commissions from all over the west.

The Martins have taken the Farley place on San Antonio Street for the summer. Royden plans to devote most of the vacation to painting; he's renewed his membership in the Carmel Art Association, and two of his children's portraits are currently on display at the gallery.

Crafts Guild Exhibit

Handicrafts by Mrs. G. F. White of Monterey comprise the June display in the Carmel Crafts Guild showcase in Carmel Library. With "an evening out" as her theme, Mrs. White has displayed a match-woven wool bag and stole and a hand-blocked card table cover.

An earlier interest in needle-work and knitting led Mrs. White to the study of weaving, and subsequently to a course in block printing at the Carmel Adult School under Doris Armsby. An experimentalist, Mrs. White says she derives most of her inspiration from nature and finds no place in her work for abstraction. Weaving, she says, is a particularly satisfying medium in this respect, with its limitless opportunities for variation.

Mike McClure, Miss Fox Wed

At 3:00 o'clock yesterday afternoon in the chapel at Carmel Mission, Darlene Elizabeth Fox and Michael Derby McClure exchanged marriage vows. Father Richard Kinsella officiated at the simple ceremony, which was attended by family and close friends of the young couple.

The bride, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Leonard Fox of Oak Harbor, Washington, was given in marriage by Martin Simpson, a close friend of the family. His daughter, Lorraine Simpson of Mountain View, was Darlene's honor attendant.

For her bridal costume Darlene chose a ballerina-length frock of pale lavender faille worn with white lace mitts and white shoes; a coronet of orange blossoms held her brief lace veil, and she carried a white prayer book marked with a spray of orchids and stephanotis.

Standing with the groom as best man was Richard Culter of Baltimore, Maryland. Mike, a 1950 graduate of Carmel High and a veteran of Navy service in Korea, is the son of Mrs. Mariquita Brey of Carmel and Colonel Donald McClure of Oakland. His half-brother, Stuart McClure, and Mrs. McClure were among the guests at the wedding.

Following the ceremony, friends congratulated the young couple at a reception held at the home of the benedict's mother on 13th and Dolores streets. Mike and his bride will occupy the house during the summer months while Mrs. Brey is out of town, but will move to their own place in the fall, when Mike plans to enroll at Monterey Peninsula College.

Handleys' Family Party

The J. O. Handleys begged off the Business Association's dinner meeting last week to celebrate an occasion in the family: Mrs. Handley's birthday. On hand to make the party a real event was the Handley son, Tom, his wife Janet, and baby Donna, who's now all of eight months old.

Tom, who's been stationed with the Coast Guard at Long Beach for some while, has just been transferred to a new post at Alameda, where he'll remain until his discharge in December. He and his family are enjoying a two week's vacation here in the interim before getting down to househunting in their new environs.

Molteni Back From Honeymoon

Back on the Peninsula after a week's honeymoon trip are Mr. and Mrs. Tony Henry Molteni, who were married June 6 at St. Angela's Catholic Church in Pacific Grove.

The bride is the former Ellen McAlister of Monterey. Henry, a veteran of the Navy and Carmel schools, is the son of John Molteni of Carmel; both he and his father are employees of the Carmel Street Department.

Family members and numerous friends of the young couple attended the wedding ceremony, and the reception which followed at Cerrito's. The newlyweds left shortly thereafter for a trip which took them through the Sierra to Reno, and returned early this week to establish their new home at 955 Oak Street in Seaside.

Priscilla and Pat Sail for Germany

The two most excited kids in Carmel last week were Priscilla Clark and Pat Ricketts, who departed Sunday for what will probably be the big adventure of their teen-age lives.

The two girls, both juniors at Carmel High, are off to spend the summer with two families in Germany as part of a good-will project sponsored by the American Field Service.

The girls' parents, Dr. and Mrs. Howard Clark and Mr. and Mrs. Gene Ricketts, saw them off on the plane from San Francisco Sunday evening. On Monday, they were in Washington, where they were royally entertained for the next two days by a friend of the Clark family and his two teen-aged sons. The two left for New York Wednesday, and tomorrow, will join some 300 other high school students aboard the good ship Seven Seas for the 10-day voyage to Le Havre. It's possible that Priscilla's elder brother, Eldon, may be able to get leave from his Navy duty at Key West to get up to New York for the sailing.

From Le Havre the girls will proceed to Bremerhaven, and there they part company to join their respective German foster families for the summer. Priscilla will go to Hannover to stay with Dr. and Mrs. Siegfried Knoke; Dr. Knoke is a professor of physics and chemistry at the university in Hannover. There is a son and two daughters in the Knoke family, the eldest daughter having studied here under the AFS. Pat will join the family of Mr. and Mrs. Lorenz Wehr in Duisburg, a town not far from Hannover. There are also three children in this family, two girls and a boy, and Pat is looking forward to being present at the wedding of the eldest girl, which is to take place during her stay. Mr. Wehr is an automobile dealer in Duisburg.

Priscilla and Pat will meet again in Bremerhaven around the end of August, when the entire group will be taken to Paris for a two-day holiday before proceeding to Havre for the homeward voyage. They'll be back in Carmel about September 13.

Sunset Faculty Vacations

The faculty of Sunset School, greeting the vacation with as much enthusiasm as its young charges, is now prepared to have it self a ball for the rest of the summer.

Most ambitious program is that of Eleanor Cence, who will spend her two months of grace touring Italy, Spain and France. Hawaii will claim Harriett Norman; she, along with Blanche O'Neil and Mrs. Marjorie McCausland, hop a Honolulu plane next Friday, and will remain in the Islands until late August, returning by freight. Raymond Gere will leave shortly on an auto trip down the west coast of Mexico, while travel in Canada and the northwest will attract Eloise Rainer, Beatrice Rea and Sarah Sproull.

Jim Bleo has taken on a summer job as wrangler and guide on a ranch near Dubois, Wyoming, while Orville Rogers will report for two weeks of military training at Fort Ord, followed by a quick trip up the Redwood Highway. Dick Pritchard plans to bag some extra credits at Loyola University summer school, then will take a tour of the northwestern states. Barbara Lynch has decided to be a real tourist—plans a motor trip east to New England and back. Anna Kohner, on the other hand, says rest is her summer project.

and she'll dedicate herself to its pursuit here, in Lake County and camping in the Sierra.

Sally McPhail will attend San Jose State's West Coast Nature School with week-long sessions at Lassen National Park, Yosemite and Asilomar; later in the summer she'll take in the Audubon camp near Lake Tahoe. Mrs. Edna Lockwood, who wrote "finis" to a 25-year teaching career last week, will retire with her husband to their home at Clearlake Highlands, where they will brace themselves for an onslaught of summer company. Irene Sieve will leave the end of this month for a holiday with friends in Bel Air (Southern California), later plans a junket to the Northern California lumber town of Scotia to see the mills and the redwoods.

School nurse Mary Clayton will bone up on health education during six weeks of summer school at San Jose State, but plans to spend weekends basking out in Carmel Valley. Peter Glod is a stay-at-home by choice: he and his wife will be hard at work all summer finishing their new home. Thelma Stohr has also elected to stay at home; she'll be entertaining friends from the east, and also plans to do some sewing herself and cleanup work on her charge, Bay School.

Alone of the group, Art Holman offers no qualification or bright promise to creep into his summer prospectus: he'll work, Period.

Judy Wallace Home

Home for vacation is Judy Wallace, daughter of Mrs. F. Lisle Wehr of Carmel, who successfully completed her junior year at the Verde Valley School in Arizona last week.

Judy's summer plans involve leaving shortly for Kenholyn Camp at Soquel, where for her third consecutive year she will work as a junior counselor. In August, Judy and her family plan to fly east to attend the wedding of a cousin in Rhode Island, then, in September, she'll return to school.

During her junior year at Verde Valley, Judy participated in two of the school's extensive field trips, one into the southwest Indian country and another into old Mexico this spring. She has also been a member of the school chorus and the sports committee.

cheer leader, assistant dorm head and a member of the yearbook staff.

New Lightweight on Borden Squad

Don Borden, track and basketball coach at Monterey Peninsula College, has a promising new member on the family lightweight squad. It's a six pound, ten ounce baby daughter, and she was clocked in at Peninsula Hospital at exactly 9:00 o'clock last Thursday evening, June 10.

Lynden Gail is the name Don and Mrs. Borden have chosen for the new daughter. The baby has an older sister named Kristen.

Grandparents of the two young ladies on the paternal side are Charles G. Borden and Mrs. Edna Smith, both of Oceanside; maternal grandfather is C. D. Hoy of Los Angeles. Mrs. Smith is presently with the Borden helping out with the baby, while Don and his wife are hard at work finishing their new home on Casanova Street.

Mrs. Deane Attends Reunion

Mrs. Sumner Deane is one of more than 1000 Wellesley College alumnae who have journeyed to Massachusetts from all parts of the country to participate in the fourth annual alumnae reunion this weekend.

Mrs. Deane arrived in Wellesley yesterday for the beginning of the reunion program, which will include among other events a special "back to class" series of lectures, class suppers and parties, an alumnae performance of Midsummer Night's Dream and various informal social events.

A Cub for the Monroes

The birth of a new boy child in the family was celebrated last week by the local branch of clan Monroe. Occasioning the happy fete is one Richard William, aged 10 days today, the first son for Mr. and Mrs. William Monroe and first grandson for the Howard Monroes, all of Carmel.

Richard put in his appearance June 8 at Peninsula Hospital, and weighed in at eight pounds, eight ounces. Happily enough, small Richard has the blonde looks of his father, while his two-year-old sister, Deborah, takes after her blonde mother in appearance.

The young newcomer may not know it, but come December his first Christmas present will be a trip to the Hawaiian Islands for a visit with his maternal grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. C. W. Vannatta, who make their home at Kohala, Hawaii.

Homecoming At Von Meier's

La Causerie et M. Adriani

La Causerie Francaise s'est reunie la semaine derniere a la Galerie des Beaux Arts. Le tout Carmel intellectuel et enthousiaste de Baudelaire avait tenu a rendre hommage a Monsieur Bruno Adriani, conferencier d'une grande sensibilite qui a montre non seulement sa connaissance parfaite de la langue francaise, mais sa grande admiration pour l'auteur des Fleurs du Mal.

A cette occasion, Monsieur Adriani avait apporte un beau portrait de Baudelaire, une superbe eau forte de Jacques Villon qui a ete bien admiree.

CHRISTIAN SCIENCE SERMON

"Is the Universe, Including Man, Evolved by Atomic Force?" will be the subject of the Lesson-Sermon to be read at Christian Science services Sunday.

Man's dominion over all materiality is stressed in the readings from the King James Version of the Bible as well as those from "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures" by Mary Baker Eddy. The Scriptural selections include the account as given in Matthew (14:22-32) of how Christ Jesus and Peter walked on the sea.

Readings from Science and Health include the following: "In proportion as matter loses to human sense all entity as man, in that proportion does man become its master. He enters into a divine sense of the facts, and comprehends the theology of Jesus as demonstrated in healing the sick, raising the dead, and walking over the wave. All these deeds manifested Jesus' control over the belief that matter is substance, that it can be the arbiter of life or the constructor of any form of existence" (369:5).

The Golden Text is from Psalms: "God hath spoken once; twice have I heard this; that power belongeth unto God" (62:11).

The Needler

by Beth

What Is This World Coming To Dept.: A large chain store on the Peninsula specializing in low-price week end items, recently had a week end special on orchid plants.

Question of the week: Who is the local character who keeps a canned golden pheasant in a bird cage at his home?

Another question, put to us by a reader was this: If a vegetarian has a black eye, does he use a glutenberge instead of a beef-steak?

Fred Mylar tells us that on June 13, driving in a jeep on a trail above Fred Godwin's ranch in Carmel Valley, he spotted something tangled in the brush which looked like a parachute and was. It had been attached to a weather balloon sent out that very day from the Oakland airport, and a note on the mechanism itself explained that such balloons explode at a height of 14,000 feet. It also requested the finder to mail it back to a given address, which Fred, naturally, promptly did.

Friends recently returned from a trip to Las Vegas and reported many strange things about that fantastic place. In one casino they saw a woman being busy with a wet bath towel, and upon investigating learned that she was washing playing cards, which were then repacked and distributed to veteran's hospitals. Thousands of packs are sent to servicemen in this way. At one time, the woman reported, she washed $100 bills, for what purpose she didn't say. Not for free distribution, we suspect.

Another experience by this group was realistic, to say the least. They drove into a drive-in theater to see Rommel, The Desert Fox, and viewed it in the midst of a sand storm all around them. Three-D with sand yet.

Last week's Pine Cone article on Mary Austin brought a run on her books, according to Librarian Elizabeth Niles. She arranged a display of books by her and about her under the portrait of the writer, who once lived in Carmel, and there was a great amount of interest shown. Many of the books had not been taken out for many months, she reports.

A local resident, shopping recently in a grocery store, noticed a woman, also shopping, who was wearing an attractive and unusual skirt. The overall pattern was made up of outlines of children's hands and their childish signatures. She asked about it and the woman, a teacher, said her class had made it for her as a surprise, with each student participating and had presented it to her on the last day of school. Wonderful idea and wonderful kids. Have an idea that teacher is pretty wonderful, too.

Fred Meach, we are sorry to say, will be laid up for some time with his badly sprained ankle. He has been with El Fumador for years and his pleasant personality there is missed. We join his many other friends in wishing him a speedy recovery.

Most of the readers who commented on a name for this column decided that The Needler was an apt title, so we'll continue being just that. After all, it was the boss who suggested it and how can you argue with the man who sets the type?

Word comes from Glenn Clairmonte that she has just finished reading proof on her biography, John Sutter of California. The dust jacket, she reports is a four-color job "that gives John his big moment of triumph, done very handsomely by Leonard Vosburgh." Glenn is a former Carmelite and a former Pine Cone staff member who is now living in New York.

Bert Taylor started out great guns in the Golden Gate Road Races in S. F. June 6 driving his Porsche. He led the first lap and slid back into second place for the next four laps with plenty of power left to cinch the race, when his motor conked out in the fifth lap. Too bad, but we know he'll make it yet.

Business Association Backs Drive To Bag Peninsula Litter

Thanks to the Carmel Business Association, the local cleanup campaign is literally in the bag.

The Association has ordered a quantity of attractively-designed paper bags, which will be distributed to Carmel's 10 gas stations. Customers will be asked to take bags and keep them in their cars for the disposal of papers, cigarette butts, beer cans or any other trash that might otherwise be scattered about the landscape by potential "litterbugs". Filled bags will be deposited in large trash receptacles to be located at each gas station.

Mrs. J. L. Wells, who placed the order for the bags this week, says they should be ready for distribution in about two weeks. Motto of the local cleanup campaign is "Enjoy the Peninsula, but Help Keep it Beautiful"; this slogan will be printed on the bags, design for which was worked out by artist Rip Matteson.

Grade School Notes

Our Earth is a beautiful planet on which many million people are inhabited. We have America with its modern improvements and its wonderful freedom. We have the beautiful fjords of Norway, Italy and its ancient capital at Rome. We have many great scientists who have revealed many things.

But how would it be if there were people on other planets? It may sound incredible, but it's possible. How would they see our Earth as a planet far behind in the ways of its inhabitants, or as a highly improved planet?

These questions interest me, and I hope to find out the answers in the future. These thoughts are a challenge that our Earth and we on it remain peaceful as long as we can if we want to keep our freedom and interests of beauty. Let's all work together. Let's prevent destruction while we can.

Local Girl On National Tour

Verna Mae Shaw, a junior at Carmel High and daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William A. Shaw of Pebble Beach, is one of a group of 22 California high school students participating in a cross-country United Nations Pilgrimage for Youth tour sponsored by Odd Fellows and Rebekah Lodges.

The local girl was chosen for the honor for having placed among the winners in a recent essay competition on international affairs sponsored by the fraternal order. Last week, following visits to various national shrines, Verna Mae and the rest of the group were introduced to top government figures in Washington. Among their official greeters were California Senator Thomas H. Kuchel, Chief Justice Earl Warren and Speaker of the House Joseph W. Martin. The students will climax their tour this week with several days at the United Nations center in New York.

Symphony Assoc. Officers Named
Officers for the coming year were elected Tuesday evening by the newly-installed board of directors of the Monterey County Symphony Association.

Fritz Wurzmann is the Association's new president, replacing B. Franklin Dixon. Other officers elected Tuesday are: Wallace Doolittle, first vice-president; Mrs. L. W. Klene, second vice-president; Mrs. James Hopper, third vice-president; Chandler Smith, treasurer; Mrs. Walter Jennings, recording secretary; and Mrs. Edward Graham, corresponding secretary.

The next meeting of the board will be June 30; reports will be heard from delegates to the American Symphony League Convention, which takes place next weekend in Santa Barbara. Representing the local Symphony Association at the convention will be Fritz Wurzmann, symphony conductor Clifford Anderson, Mrs. L. W. Klene and Franklin Dixon.

Kiwanis Previews Musicomedy

Donald "Doc" Stanford, president of Carmel Kiwanis, gave fellow members a report yesterday on the International Kiwanis Convention at Miami, which he attended last month in the course of a trip to Cuba with Mrs. Stanford.

The club also heard a resume of the forthcoming musical comedy Silver Star from its director, David Eldridge. The show will be produced by Three Ring Productions at Sunset Auditorium and will run three weekends, ending Labor Day. Proceeds of the show go to the club's charity fund.

Ruth McElroy will star in the musical, playing the role of a cattle baroness in a Texas border town of the '80s. Previews of seven of the show's big numbers were played and sung at yesterday's meeting by co-authors Ric Masten and Don Adams.

The Time Has Come . . .

By Kippy Stuart

This story today is going to be a tribute to one single flower. Out of the millions of blooms, I nominate this choice of mine the tops of the flower kingdom. The ancient Chinese had a lovely slogan to signify genuine art, "Art is a single rose against a background of nothing." I learned this years ago while in the Orient, and the saying has stuck with me through the years. Flowers cluttered in vases, massed past the breathing point, have ever been a phobia of mine, and the bud vase has it all over the crowded container.

For many years now I have been experimenting with roses, trying to discover those hardy enough to stand our difficult climate. Here is a list of roses tried in my garden: Talisman, Etoile de Holland, Golden Emblem, the Doctor, Helen Traubel, Chrysler Imperial, Cecil Bruner, Mark Sullivan, Snow Bird, Mojave, President Hoover, Sutter's Gold, Forty-Niner, Eclipse, and a few others I have forgotten. No, the flower of my nomination for universal tribute is not named in this list. (Suspense!!! Suspense!!!)

Not all of these roses have been installed in my garden at the same time, for each season when roses can be moved bare root, I offer several to friends who wish to take a try. In the above list, the roses that I have retained as suitable for this locality are: Golden Emblem, Cecil Bruner, Chrysler Imperial, Mojave, and Talisman. Why I discarded the others I cannot rightly remember, but they all left my garden for logical reasons.

There is a movement in the rose world to protest new hybrids being named after commercial organizations, such as Chrysler Imperial. There is no place for selling talk in the flower kingdom. I hope the Rose Guild of America will have some luck on this point.

My experience with cut roses has held disappointment, for few will remain in the living room over two days before they begin to wilt. One tablespoon of sugar in the water will not only help to conserve strength, but sugar added to water holding a wilting flower will frequently revive the bloom.

Now, out of my own garden, I have in my living room a perfect rose that started there is a young bud, and gradually has opened to its full beauty. This is not extraordinary, as many roses perform this miracle. But my rose is a real miracle, for it was harvested from my garden exactly eight days ago and is still in its prime, and bids fair to last the weekend out! Of course, all good gardeners know this rose, for it carries physical beauty as well as a spiritual intent. For my rose is the beautiful Peace Rose, that marvel of the hybridizer's skill.

Of all the roses in my garden, this Peace Rose requires less care, seems able to fight off prevailing pests, and do its stuff as no other flower I have ever seen. Yet aside from the fact that this is a superb flower, the Peace Rose carries with it the quality of quiet assurance; its very name bringing freedom from disturbance, harmony and faith.
